"But the Chinese Lowestoft only forms a part of the gathering which the American Art Association is enabled to offer to collectors and all interested in old things. There are other porcelains, potteries, and much glassware, which includes examples of Waterford Cut Glass and many pieces of colored glass of importance. Then there is the Furniture, oak, walnut and mahogany, of the sixteenth, the seventeenth and the eighteenth centuries, some of it from Spain, some frem France and much of it from England. There are textiles, among which may be found silken brocades and damasks, filets and embroideries from the looms and needles of Italy, France and Spain. Tapestries there are, too, from Flanders, and hooked rugs from our own America of early days, as well as Silver and Sheffield Plate bearing the marks of English makers of the Georgian period. Of fiscellaneous articles there are many trays, crystal chandeliers, carvings, brass and pewter wares, several exceptional mirrors, and not a few of those tiny trees, with flowers and leaves of carven jade, which we owe to the patient ingenuity of the Chinese craftsman, and a remarkable Coromandel lacquer screen."

"Altogether, Mr. Lawrence's collection is one which, from its very variety, will well repay a visit and a consequent attendance at its dispersal."

Special Dienatch to The Tribune
PHILADELPHIA, March 22.—Posing in high social circles as a confirmed backelor, Hugh Craig jr., wealthy clubman, who died five years ago, was revealed in the Orphans' Court to-day as the father of a daughter who now claims her share of his estate.

This was brought out in argument on exceptions to the report of Hampton L. Carson, who, as master, rejected the claim of the young woman to part of the estate. Craig had a large income from the estate of his father, Hugh Craig, a part of which, upon the death of the younger Craig, was to go to his child or children if he had any. The court reserved decision.

Following the death of Mr. Craig, a Mrs. Wetner appeared and announced that she was his daughter. She is now about thirty-four years old and is living in West Philadelphia with an invalid mother, according to former Judge William W. Porter, who is her counsel. She works in a department store.
